

FELLOWSHIPS AVAILABLE IN MINERALOGY
AND STRUCTURAL CRYSTALLOGRAPHY

Two fellowships are available in the Department of Geology, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in the fields of Mineralogy and Structural Crystallography. One of these, a teaching fellowship, carries a stipend of $500 per academic year plus free tuition. Up to eighteen hours per week may be required of the holder of this fellowship. The duties consist of teaching and other assistance in connection with laboratory instruction in mineralogy and possibly optical crystallography. Preference will be given to a student specializing in mineralogy or crystallography.

Another fellowship, concerned chiefly with carrying out investigations in structural crystallography and allied fields, requires an investigator with a fairly good background in crystallography and preferably having had some experience in the x-ray study of crystal structures. This fellowship, which is of a more permanent nature, requires the full time of the incumbent and carries a stipend of about $2000.

Anyone interested in either of these fellowships should communicate with Professor M. J. Buerger, Department of Geology, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, giving full details regarding their qualifications.
